—On Wednesday the German Presbyterian Church Sabbath school held a picnic at Weaver's Grove.

—R. W. Gardner and family will leave town next week for their annual visit to the New Jersey Highlands.

—A child of Christopher Miller of Watertown died on Tuesday of cholera infantum and was buried Thursday.

—The Township Committee are performing an excellent piece of work in extending Midland Avenue to Dodd street, East Orange.

—Miss Louise Dodd, and Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Frissell are spending a few weeks at Cloudland, in the mountains of North Carolina.

—Three deaths have occurred during the past week, William P. Lyon, last Sunday, James H. Way, Tuesday, and Mrs. John Tenney, Wednesday.

—Mrs. John Decker, of Newark, Miss Hattie Kent and Miss Rita Dancer, of Bloomfield, are spending two weeks at the Norton House, Pompton, N. J.

—In the report of the Township Committee in the last issue, a mistake was made in the amount of money received for taxes from Charles L. Ward; it should read $150.00 instead of $50.00.

—Will "D" please send his address to the editors of the CITIZEN? It is contrary to our rules to publish articles unless the signature is given for use, if necessary.

—A Franklin street lady, hearing some one remark that last Sunday's earthquake was possibly a Butler boom, applied and said it seemed more like a Cleve-land boom.

—Pleasant rooms with board, can be had with Mrs. Wilder, at Point Pleasant, N. J., during September and October. Moderate prices, convenient location and unexceptional service, make this a good place to stop.

—Preparations are making for a picnic by the Hope Sunday-school. It will take place August 20th, in a wood near by. A number of years have gone by since an entertainment of this kind has been given to the children.

—The N. Y. & Greenwood Lake Railway offer special inducements to parties wishing to visit Greenwood Lake. Tickets from Bloomfield to the lake and return, can be purchased for $1.10. Train leaves Bloomfield at 9:14 A. M.

—There will be a special meeting of Hose Co. No. 1 on Tuesday, August 19th, at 8 p. m. at the Hose House. All members are earnestly requested to attend so as to make the final arrangements for the picnic to be held the following evening.

—Messrs. Edward C. and Philip Cocke, fair started on Monday morning for a drive through Northern New Jersey. They intend visiting Schooley's Mountain, Washington, Neshaun and other points of interest, spending a few days in each place.

—Special attention is called to the Picnic of Bloomfield Hose Company, No. 1, on Wednesday, August 20, 1884, at Weaver's Grove. The committee assure all who attend a pleasant hour, and as the object is for the benefit of the whole township, they hope a large number will avail themselves of the opportunity to assist.

—The Bloomfield Fire Association have changed the name of Fire Marshal to Chief Engineer, who has two assistants: A. J. Marsh, Chief Engineer; S. B. Sablin, First Assistant; W. L. Puffer, Second Assistant, and Clerk to the Chief. The Chief Engineer has his office at the Hose House. Max Kohler, of the Hose, has a room in the Hose

House where he resides, and will be on hand in case a fire breaks out to give the alarm. A telephone connection is to be made between the Truck and Hose Houses.

—The Hose Company's picnic will take place next Wednesday night, and a very enjoyable time is anticipated. Complimentary tickets were given to officers of Essex H. and L. Company and Montclair H. and L. Company, Engines Nos. 4 and 9 and Trucks, Nos. 1 and 2, of Newark; East Orange Hose Company No. 2, and to the Olive Club, of Newark; and the Township Committee. The companies intend to come in a body. Good music will be given. Now is the time to buy tickets, if you have not done so already.

—Workmen are engaged in tearing down and changing the bridge over Broad street, upon the Montclair and Greenwood Lake Railway, preparatory to the erection of an iron bridge at that place. It is more than fourteen years since this bridge was built, and during the longest period of the town's people. At that time Mr. Spalding, who was in charge of the road, promised that an iron bridge should be substituted within three years. While the promise was not kept, the good wishes of the town will go with the road, with the hope that it may enjoy a prosperous future. It will be a great improvement to the upper neighborhood.

A Correction.

Mr. Charles Keller, of Newark, desires us to state that the report of proceedings before Justice Hagemann, contained in our issue of July 26th, does him injustice. The report stated that his companions were well-dressed men, while Mr. Keller was not of such appearance. Mr. Keller claims that his appearance was entirely respectable, and that it was unfair to represent his clothing as being inferior to that of his friends.

Reform Club Notice.

The Plainfield Reform Club sends an invitation and an earnest request to the Bloomfield Reform Club to go to Plainfield on August 19th, and assist in the dedication of their new hall, and parade with them at eleven o'clock on said day. We desire to send a large delegation. Will all who can go please notify our Secretary immediately, as the Plainfield people want to know how many to expect. A collation will be provided for all.

P. O. Box 114. Secretary.

Obituaries.

MRS. JOHN TENNEY. The many friends of Mrs. John Tenney, of Glen Ridge, will be much pained to learn of her sudden death at Dunbarton, N. H. Mrs. Tenney accompanied by her children and Miss Lottie Tenney, went to Kennebunkport, Me., a few weeks ago. She was in apparently good health, but had a troublesome cough. After her arrival at Kennebunkport she grew worse, and a physician was called, who ordered her immediate removal from the seashore. She was taken to Dunbarton, N. H., where she died on Wednesday last. Her funeral took place yesterday at Methuen, Mass., the former home of her husband. Mrs. Tenney was a member of Westminster Church, and was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends in Bloomfield and Montclair, where she formerly resided. Her death was entirely unexpected by her intimate friends in Bloomfield, though they knew of her illness.

JAMES H. WAY. Mr. J. H. Way died at his residence in Bloomfield on Tuesday of this week, after an illness of several weeks' duration. Mr. Way had been engaged in business in Bloomfield for some years, and was an active member of the Truck Company, the Knights of Honor, and other benevolent societies. He leaves a widow and no children.

Montclair Squibs.

The Truck House will place a sign, "Montclair H. & L. Co. No. 1," in front of their quarters next week.

On account of the cholera, very few pleasure seekers have gone to Europe this season. A few, however, have ventured as far as Coney Island.

Several lively young men have tried at different times to paint this little village a bright red, but have only succeeded in painting themselves blue.

The frame-work of the bell-tower is complete, and the bell from J. M. Williams' foundry, Jersey City, has arrived. The bell weighs 3,410 pounds; on one side is an inscription, Montclair Fire Department, Township Committee, (here follows the names of the present Township Committee), on the other side is the name of the manufacturer, with the date. It is expected that the bell will be placed in position, and ready for alarm purposes by the end of the week (today).

Belleville affairs are in a quiescent state. Business is about so so. Very little building going on. None of the old factory ruins has been utilized. The roads worse, if possible, this year than last. Fences tumbling down, yards neglected. Churches and schools are flourishing. Base ball is the principal amusement. The Horse Railroad Company have been trying lately to see how difficult they can make the passage to Newark. They are afraid that when people once leave Belleville they will never come back.

The Seventh Annual Harvest Home Festival, at the grove at Upper Montclair, was postponed from Thursday to Friday. The afternoon was very pleasant and there was a very large attendance. There were seven stages running besides the regular trains. The storm which came up in the afternoon started the people for home, but despite the rain, which poured down for a short time in the evening, the festival was kept up. The Fancy and Art Tents closed up early, but the other attractions were kept open till the extra train left. The Punch and Judy show in the afternoon attracted to the Dramatic Tent crowds of children, and the three entertainments were given to crowded houses. The evening performances of "Cool as a Cucumber" were also well attended. Everything but the weather went off satisfactorily. The festival was kept up on Saturday afternoon, but the rain again interfered with an evening's entertainment. We are assured that a goodly sum was cleared for the church society.

Bloomfield Reform Club.

To the Citizens: A temperance meeting will be held in the First Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. J. H. McKinlay, who in former years was a wealthy and prominent business man in New York, but lost business, wealth and reputation through drink, and who recently has reformed, will give his experience. Other speakers are also expected to take part in the exercises. As most, if not all of the churches in the village will not have any services on that evening, it is hoped we shall have a grand rally of all those who are interested in the temperance work in this place.

HENRY RUSSELL, President.

Vacation Notes.

When one travels by the "Connet" Through Express on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, he continues for some time in a state of anxious inquiry about the origin of the name. The only plausible explanation I have discovered is that the thing moves very rapidly as far as its perihelion passage, then it slows down, and it keeps on getting slower the further it goes. Perihelion exact, is at the top of the mountains, where an excellent table is set for strangers and pilgrims in the new Glen Summit hotel. Afterwards, you run along in a steady-going style without much variety, except in the scenery, until you reach the neighborhood of Laceyville. The young fellow who acted as train-boy here brought in a printed notice that passengers who wished excellent ice cream, with a spoon, could be served at the next station. He was a gentlemanly chap—quite out of the usual style of train-boys—and it occurred to the undersigned that heat and dust would be instigated by the use of a solvent of this sort. Moreover, when it came in a manilla paper box, it was all that the advertisement called for.

At Sayre the Geneva, Ithaca and Sayre Railroad branches off and runs to Lyons on the main line of the New York Central Railroad. Here I, too, was transferred, and about six o'clock was passing Ithaca at the head of Cayuga Lake. Transburgh, ten miles distant, was my journey's end.

This region has not received the attention it deserves from summer tourists. It is the lake country of New York State. Its prominent towns and villages are such as Ithaca and Canandaigua, Geneva and Auburn, Skaneateles and Syracuse, and an infinite number of classical places, which by a curious fatality have clustered through this section. The early settlers loved letters, and these towns have in nearly every instance some old academy—now known as the high school—and which did a great deal for education and refinement. The society is excellent, and everything speaks of culture and comfort.

Transburgh is on high ground—fully four hundred feet above the lake, from which it is reached about two miles and a half. A daily steamboat plies from Ithaca to Cayuga Bridge and back again, making the landings of these thirty miles with considerable precision and not much speed. The village is neat and pleasant, and they have a much better public hall than Bloomfield, and in it I heard a concert by a brass band, and heard a lecture on the life of Lincoln, and I may say that I enjoy that kind of music when it is dispensed in the air far better than when it is bottled up and the cork put in. I heard the same band last night at a lawn party with a big glaring crescent of pine-knots in the centre; and it was much more agreeable.

At Taghkanoch Falls—the true way to spell it I find, however, to be "Taughannoch"—there is a nice hotel well filled with summer guests. The Falls are a delightful object in the scene, and the chasm below the hotel is wild and romantic. Your abashed and humble servant missed the height of those falls by exactly one hundred and ten feet. You see there is nothing to give you a chance for comparison, and they look about ninety or one hundred feet high instead of the two hundred and nine and three-quarters, which the actual measure makes them. Or the two hundred and fifteen which the people generally claim. But that shimmering veil of lawn, crinkling against the face of the cliff, is a charming point on which the eye can rest without weariness. And they tell me that it changes greatly with the state of the water.

The diversions of Transburgh are those of quiet and sedate folk, with good farms back of them, and plenty of time on their hands. Yet there is located here the heavy reaper and agricultural implement manufacturing of Gregg & Co. and in a quiet way the town has plenty of worldly goods and is not entirely deficient in the matter of fine residences.

Ithaca is different. Its Democratic streets are revealed by big Cleveland and Hendricks banners, and it is curiously compounded of the old and ugly and the new and beautiful. The buildings of Cornell University crown a heart-breaking and horse-destraining hill, from which you gaze down upon the business streets and out over the lake. The grounds are admirably kept, and the rustic population appeared to be utilizing them for picnics. In fact, "Cornell" is the great show place of this neighborhood, and its influence is plainly observable all around. I found the library a mere box of working tools. As yet, they have not developed it in the direction of specialties, as the professors are all expected to donate their private collections of books, and are already now to employ them freely in the service of the institution.

The drive back from Ithaca is against the hill nearly the entire time. Our party, with good moonlight and good horses, could enjoy the leisure and for my own part I was glad to have the pleasant company of Mr. Stanford Conde of Gregg & Co., who opened up to me the peculiarities of the country. I honestly think that few views can compare with the splendid rich landscape which stretches in its placid beauty up and away from the lake and across which you gaze for miles upon miles. The weather was perfect, the air as pure as the Catskills, reminding me of that and of Saratoga at every breath, and the landscape was an absolute picture. This lake country ought to welcome poets like Wordsworth and Coleridge and Southey, but that style of literature appears to have gone by, and nowadays no one writes verses that any one else can understand. Let it not be forgotten however, that the name of Fenimore Cooper is associated with such scenery as this, and that of the region further north.

A physician in large practice is always an agreeable companion. Such a man and such a man's home is that of my friend of many years—and I have always found that this kind of doctor drives a good horse, smokes a good cigar and tells a genial story. Rely upon it that this quondam editor, after he has visited "Sheldrakes"—the summer resort at the foot of the lake (Ithaca is at the south end or "head")—and after he has also inspected the Willard Insane Asylum at Ovid, will be prepared to add a page or two to his letter. But somehow he has so much on hand that he don't want to promise to hold on, and so here goes the letter just as it is! S. W. D.
